888 94A-GOAL | info@ceptara.com

Join us July 12th for our Personal Excellence Workshop to be held in Seattle WA. Come prepared to look at what is important in your life and learn how you can organize personal and business tasks to help you achieve excellence.

The workshop will help you to:

- Identify your life's goals in context of your pressure points.
- Understand why your goals are important to you.
- Identify daily organizational techniques to help you focus on your goals and manage the firestorm of activities and daily expectations.

The class presents in two parts, a) learn the basics of personal excellence and b) how to leverage Microsoft Outlook using Ceptara's Organizer [5] for Outlook Add-in to implement your new personal excellence system.

Find more information on the Personal Excellence Workshop here [6].

Register [7] for the event by June 30th to take advantage of our early bird pricing, only $200 for 6 hours of focused instruction on what matters most to you.

Creating an Effective Meeting Agenda

Meetings are supposed to be held with a specific purpose. Whether it's to brainstorm for ideas, assign tasks, or inform the group, there's a goal to achieve. For the most part, an agenda can be used to help you do just that. Use these RACI guidelines [8] to help create an effective agenda.

Using Corrective Action to Make Matters Worse by not Considering Variation

Often management will want to take corrective action to solve problems but before they implement the change they fail to consider variation making the outcome ineffective or counterproductive. Commitment by management is key. Find the entire article located at the bottom of this link [9].

Standardizing Personal Processes

At the heart of any continuous improvement project is standardization. Daily processes that leaders often overlook can vary each time it is performed therefore quality may suffer, lead times are erratic and productivity may be constrained. Use the tips found here [10] to develop a standard work process at your organization.
